

Two Killed as Negro Soldiers Battle Police

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 27.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and at least 12 wounded early today in a three-hour battle between Negro soldiers and military and civilian police.

The riot, which started when a Negro military policeman attempted to arrest a recruit, brought more than 100 military and civilian police officers to the scene and 28 blocks were placed under curfew control.

The dead, Robert Riley, 44, Negro, Phoenix, 30-shot to death in his car. An unidentified Negro soldier, whose body was found sprawled in the street soon after the shooting started.

One of the injured was Lieut. August J. Egan, 38, former sheriff, who was shot in the chest.

Allied Armies Closing in on Bizerte, Tunis

Striking forces, were reported moving northward through the interior of Tunisia to strike at the Axis forces on the east coast, including the Sfax-Gabes area.

FEROCEOUS BATTLE
An Allied general headquarters communique announced the capture of Medjez-El-Bab, 35 miles southwest of Tunis, after probably the most ferocious battle of the Tunis campaign.

The British First Army under Lieut. Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson, spearheaded by tanks and supported by powerfully reinforced armor, stormed and captured Medjez-El-Bab against furious enemy resistance and drove on up the rail line toward Tunis.

A radio Morocco bulletin, reporting that fighting was now going on only 10 miles west of Tunis, indicated that the Allied forces were storming Djidjelli, the junction of the Tunis-Bizerte railroad.

Advancing along the north coast, the First Army forced German advanced units to retreat to a short distance from Bizerte, radio Moscow reported, quoting a special Allied general headquarters communique.

TAKE PRISONERS
The communique said detachments of Allied parachute troops, operating on the southern part of the Tunisian front, had captured German armored columns and taken prisoners.

GRANTED 'LEAVE'
The bulk of our forces are constantly advancing northward, the communique said, and the concentration of German forces on the east coast of Tunisia, where they had been driven back to a position 25 miles southwest of Tunis by American and French forces.

The First British Army, which advanced along the northeast coast, forced German advance units to retreat to a short distance from Bizerte.

Further south detachments of Allied parachute troops, operating on the southern part of the Tunisian front, had captured German armored columns and taken prisoners.

SMASHING ATTACK
Allied planes provided protection for the tank spearheads, the communique said, after American army planes had made a smashing attack yesterday morning on the great Axis airbase near Tunis and destroyed at least 10 grounded planes.

It was indicated that the Allied army had advanced without delay up the railroad after taking Medjez-El-Bab, led by its tanks which included new American General Sherman.

The communique, giving the first details of the German retreat, said the position and operations of the Allied forces, was believed to mean that German forces were being driven from the Tunis-Bizerte area.

PLANES DESTROYED
The Allied communique said that in their raid on Tunis, American planes scored six debris of German fighters in previous raids on the airbase.

The planes encountered strong anti-aircraft fire but met no fighter challenge.

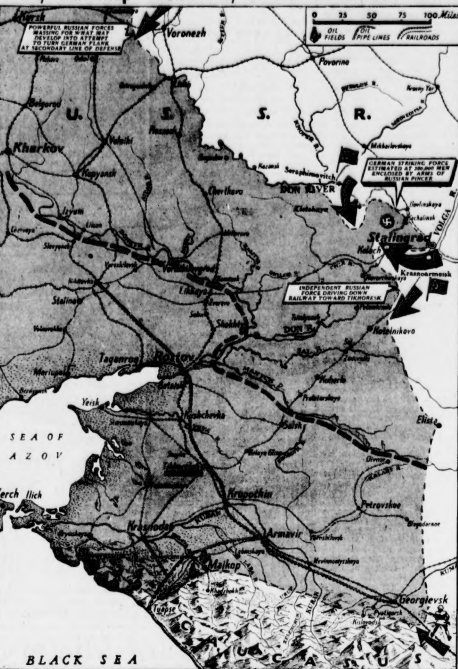

Planes of the British air force, in a series of offensive sweeps yesterday, shot down at least 12 planes, bringing a 24-hour lull in the air.

Several Allied planes failed to return from operations reported, the communique said, but pilots of three were seen.

Communique No. 8 of the French army broadcast by Radio Morocco reported that French regulars had joined the Allied army in the Tunis-Bizerte area and were marching eastward with it.

MAKE CONTACT
Dispatches indicated that south of the Tunis-Bizerte sector the Allied advance units were in contact with German units had three inland but that the big scale clashes were yet to come.

Pétain Tried to Aid French Officers' Escape

French leader in Africa, proposed to send a mission to London and Washington.

The Madrid advice said that on Nov. 10, the day after Pierre Laval left for Berlin, Pétain through Gen. Eugène Brindou, Vichy war minister, issued an order granting special "leave" to all officers who wanted it, with the provision that when they left their barracks they had to wear uniform clothes.

Pétain knew that Laval had gone to Berlin to negotiate the occupation of Vichy territory by the Germans, it was said, and the army knew that his "leave" order was issued because of this knowledge.

Hundreds of officers had accepted the offer, it was said, when Laval heard of it and telephoned Pétain from Berlin, ordering him to cancel the order. Pétain complied, it was said, and ordered a fresh order, confining all officers to barracks in uniform, including generals. At the same time the advice said, Pétain ordered the Vichy gendarmes to block roads to prevent the flight of officers.

WEYAND TRIED FLEE
Gen. Maxime Weyand, former head of the Vichy army in Africa, tried to flee to Africa with three other generals, Madrid said, and ordered an airplane prepared for them but arrived at the airport only to be arrested. Weyand later was sent to Germany.

Laval, returning to Vichy, informed Pétain that he must be given dictatorial powers because he was the only Frenchman the Germans trusted, Madrid said.

According to Madrid, Pétain received four days before he signed the various order Berlin had decreed, and later tried to withdraw the order.

The advice said Darlan apparently learned of Allied plans to occupy North Africa in advance of the German attack and was the operation at the same time that he received the Berlin order.

He was ill at Algiers. Darlan at once flew to Africa, it was said. When he was informed that great Allied convoys were steaming down the Portuguese coast, he was said, he continued to nurse his son.

On the morning of Nov. 8, Madrid said, the Germans who had thrust inland had been attacking, concentrating attacks with a view to organizing strong defensive positions in the mountainous interior.

SENT FROM TRIPOLI
Moroccan dispatches estimated that the German strength in Tunisia now totalled about 20,000 men. The rest of the front was said to be 4,000 in southern Tunisia, largely along the coast including the Gabes area on the Gulf of Gabes.

The southern Axis forces had been sent to Tripoli, in far western Libya. A Vichy radio Hava agency dispatch from Spain said two Allied battalions, two aircraft carriers, and many cruisers and destroyers had arrived at Gibraltar Wednesday to join the 30 merchantmen in the harbor.

Not Forgotten Fund Welcomes Your Donation

ing that remembrance into practical form.

There is only one objective of this fund, namely, to provide for the needs of the soldiers of the military war. Surely that is an objective that will appeal to all. What finer Christmas gesture could a person make than to contribute to the happiness of men who offered their lives for your safety and security and suffered untold agony and pain in the unequal battle of human flesh versus cold steel?

The Not Forgotten Fund is your fund. It is the medium whereby you can contribute to the soldiers' needs. Through it you can show that you have not forgotten, and that you fully appreciate their contribution to democracy.

NO DEDUCTIONS
Not one cent is deducted for administration overhead, or any other charges. All money donated goes to the soldier's needs.

The gap between pay and need is too large. The pressure of last-minute business, fail to send it in. Send it now. It is too late. Send your donation today and it will be acknowledged—$2.75.

Strike Continues At Ford Factory
WINDSOR, Nov. 27.—(CP)—One hundred male office workers at the plant of the strikebroken Ford Motor Company of Canada plant were instructed by a company official today to return to their homes when strike pickets blocked their entry to the property.

However, girl office workers were permitted to pass through the picket line to reach the plant which closed Tuesday when members of the Local 30 of the United Automobile Workers of America (UAW) went on strike.

William H. Neale of the Windsor police is reported to have persuaded pickets to allow certain office workers and other non-hourly rated employees to enter the plant.

Pickets outnumbered police at the gates. Ontario Labor Minister Peter Heenan has arrived in the city in connection with a settlement of the strike which started when workers said that women were being hired for men's work at wages lower than those paid to men in the case of a union-company agreement.

RALSTON ANNOUNCES: Infantry Corps Authorized For Canadian Active Army

By FRANK FLAHERTY
OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—(CP)—Formation of a corps of infantry, mounted and active, the Army was announced today by Defence Minister Ralston in a statement from defence headquarters.

The move puts the infantry on the same organizational basis as the artillery, engineers, signals, armor, medical, and other branches of the army which are all on a corps rather than a regimental basis or organization.

When the corps comes into being infantry soldiers will belong to their corps and not to a particular battalion just as artillerymen belong to the artillery and not to a particular regiment or battery. They will be completely interchangeable between units at the will of the higher command.

PRESERVE TRADITIONS
Regimental names and traditions, however, will not be discarded. On the contrary, the departmental statement quoted Ralston as saying that the new system is designed to preserve them.

Maj-Gen. H. F. G. Latson, adjutant general, explained that in practice, "the infantry corps principle is that regimental titles and integrity will be maintained but the corps will be reorganized to the needs of the situation."

The change is expected to bring important results in simplifying administration, both of defence headquarters and at district headquarters.

The step is expected to bring important results in simplifying administration, both of defence headquarters and at district headquarters.

From now on all infantrymen will be in one group. It will not be necessary to have a particular man as a member of a particular unit, as a member of the corps.

To Lease Grounds
VICTORIA, Nov. 27.—(CP)—Army authorities announced yesterday the Department of National Defence had approved general tenders for the immediate leasing by the army of five buildings at the Willoughby exhibition grounds here.

The buildings are to be used for the storage of military equipment and for the housing of military personnel.

EQUAL DIVISION
Putting the whole of the army's infantry into a single corps will make it possible to provide an equal division between the different units of the skilled men available. It will make promotions more equitable, the service more efficient, and the army more unified.

The proposal has been under consideration by the general staff for a long time and is a consolidation of the British army arrived at the same decision at about the same time and had recently organized its infantry into a corps.

CAVALRY ABSORBED
About two years ago when the Canadian armored corps was formed many of the country's old-time cavalry units and later some infantry battalions were absorbed into it. Their former separate existence as regiments which in reality are simply small corps, came to an end but their former regimental names are preserved.

They now run something like this: "The Armoured Regiment (Dragoons) with the old name in brackets. It is not proposed to adopt this new name practice in the infantry at once but it may come later."

In actual practice, for some time the active army divisions have operated on the corps principle, the divisional commanders making promotion of officers from a single regimental list.

Few if any of the battalion commanders in the active army were formerly with the units they command. Almost all have been shifted from other units as vacancies occur.

The new system will be applied throughout the whole infantry corps as the standard practice. For

U.S. Will Adapt New Metals For One-Cent Piece

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—United States treasury officials announced yesterday that one-cent pieces would be minted of steel, coated with zinc to free copper for war industries as well as Congress passed pending legislation permitting the use of substitute materials for small coins.

The bill already has been passed by the senate and now awaits house approval. In anticipation of the early passage, the treasury has experimented with several copperless pennies and one design featuring the use of zinc-coated steel seems the most successful substitute.

At the same time the administration is reported to have abandoned hope for passage at this session of legislation which would authorize the government to sell some of its silver to industry for consumptive uses.

U.S. Navy Losses Total 17,252 Men

Water, plain or sparkling, has nothing in common with camouflage. It never flatters any whisky mixed with it. And Seagram's "83" is one whisky that needs no flattery.

If you want to know the plain truth about whisky, test its flavour, its bouquet and aroma in the plain-spoken honesty of water. Put Seagram's "83" to this easily made test and you will say, with connoisseurs who know whiskies best: "To be that good with water, it must be a superb whisky — and a more satisfying drink with any man's favourite mixer!"

Dawson Creek Daily

Passenger trains are to start running daily between Edmonton and Dawson Creek, starting point of the Alaska highway. Traffic incident to military operations is of course the main factor in causing the establishment of this frequent service at present. Had the war not occurred there would be no highway, and no daily trains to connect with it, until some time in the future.

The highway will be there when the war ends, and the daily trains are likely to continue to run. The new road is not only an inlet and an outlet from Alaska, for war purposes. It affords access to a great stretch of intervening territory which was not heretofore available to tourists or capable of development.

When military roads no longer require use of the highway and abhor attention, there will be a flood of tourist traffic into and through the vast expanse of unknown country it traverses. There will also be, beyond doubt, a great influx of explorers and prospectors into that area and a rapid and far-flung opening of productive and commercial enterprise.

Aside altogether from the immediate purpose of its building, the highway has opened up an entire world of opportunity said to be both varied and extensive. These, as has been the case in other sections of the world, will draw men and money and capital into the country to start the processes of development.

The building of this road has also drawn attention to the whole Peace River and Grande Prairie areas, and an expansion of settlement, production and trade there is certain.

The first daily passenger train which pulls out of Edmonton for Dawson Creek will for all these reasons signify the coming of a new era in the development of the region which lies between this city and the Alaska boundary. An era of progress and growth will not end when peace returns and men and money are again free to undertake the creative enterprises of peace.

De Gaulle and Darlan

It is easy to understand the feelings of General de Gaulle and his associates at the spectacle of Admiral Darlan, who was the friend of the Allies in North Africa. They may be sure these feelings of mistrust are widely shared in Allied countries, as they were in the case of the Allied political and military leaders.

But in war help has to be taken where it can be got, and Darlan is in position to give, or to withhold, powerful help to the French colonies. The measure of his influence is shown by the readiness with which the French press has been looking to him, even against the radio appeals of Marshal Petain.

Suppose Darlan's help had been spared. The Allied troops would have had to fight their way into every nook and corner of Morocco and Algeria, against the fierce forces backed by the Italian and German forces. In all probability thousands of Allied soldiers would have been killed and wounded, great stores of supplies and equipment would have been used up, precious time would have been lost, and Dakar would still be hostile.

Thanks to Darlan's help we have recovered his motives—Morocco and Algiers were occupied at last, Dakar switched without a shot fired, and the French troops in the northern colonies are now fighting with the Allies to oust the Axis out of Tunisia and to round up the remnants of Rommel's army. Hitler may anywhere, obtained such success, so little.

Specific assurance has been given that Darlan was not paid for his assistance by any compromising promises. General Giraud, to whose patriotism de Gaulle has paid high tribute, made no difficulty about serving with Darlan's approval and his aid is now being given with joy with the Allied High Command.

That should go some way to reconcile de Gaulle and his associates to the position of the Axis in North Africa, despite their amazement at the temporary status of the turn-of-coat Admiral.

Safety First

It is not true, and it is not complimentary to the intelligence of the people of the United Nations, to say that they do not know what we are fighting for.

The Allied people are now fighting clearly and very positively. They are fighting to save themselves from being subjugated by the butchering bullock who have enslaved Europe from Paris to Russia and from Norway to Turkey, and who on the other side of the world have spread slaughter and pillage over an area quite as large and even more populous.

That was the purpose, the all-sufficient and all-embracing purpose, for which the Allied Nations took up arms. If we succeed in this object we shall be able to shape the course of the future. If we fail, it will make no difference what course the Allied people or any of them want future events to follow.

What the critics really mean is that the Allies have not made it clear enough why they bring about changes in world relationships and government which the critics hope for. That is a quite different proposition and it is true.

The Atlantic Charter stated in only general terms the aims upon which the Allies are agreed for the restoration of world peace. How far beyond these general terms the Allies are going to go in agreement, or how far they are entitled to try to go, is conjectural. If they were to go beyond the limits of the demands of the sticklers for detail, the list would have as many clauses as the Treaty of Versailles, and as many incentives for squabbling and secession.

Since they still govern themselves, it is the right and privilege of citizens of the free countries to discuss and compare reconstruction plans and aims. But to say these must be officially codified, debated and agreed upon while the menace of enslavement still hangs over us, is neither reasonable nor safe. Schism, rather than unity, would be in prospect if they were attempted.

The present job of the Allies is to make sure that they will not be struck down and submerged in barbarism. If they accomplish that, they will have time and opportunity to plan the world to come with assurance that they can make their plans come true.

The Not Forgotten Fund needs your contribution, and it will be welcomed, however small.

It is an off day now when another Jap destroyer or transport is not sunk in the Solomon-New Guinea area.

The Russians must be good counters. They give the Nazi losses in killed, wounded and captured as totals more than 250,000 men, while the spoils of the eight day drive run to hundreds of field guns, trucks, tanks, and other equipment, and "vast quantities" of food.

To collect such information while a running fight is in progress over a wide area is itself a feat. The above figures have not been far astray in the past.

Democracy is Bugged Down in Words and Notions

Wendell Willkie is Example of the Present Age of Talk

By HAROLD L. WEIR

If the average intelligent man were asked to sort out his impressions and feelings about the question: "What's the chief thing wrong with democracy?" he would answer in one of two ways.

Now that need not be a reflection on the man, Willkie the man. Willkie the man, I believe, is a highly capable and extremely well-intentioned fellow. He is brimming over with good will and equally well-meaning resolutions. He honestly wants to see the world progress.

But his modest operandi makes a nuisance of himself. And it is that he is typical of a great deal that is wrong with our democracy.

Willkie is only employing the language that has been used for generations among the democracies for a generation. That is why, although there is no intrinsic fault in his mind which I know of, the public is not much wiser.

Politically, Willkie is the product of a generation of many good ideas. He is essentially a good man. He is essentially a good man. He is essentially a good man.

But why that should give him the right to display his own private contentment upon every subject under the sun is quite beyond me.

Mr. Willkie recently had a bird's-eye view of the world. He talked briefly with Chiang Kai Shek in Chungking and immediately became an authority on the Asiatic situation. He flew over the Alaska highway and immediately became an expert on northern defence. He conferred with military authorities in Africa and at once was translated into the highest ranking war officer in the world.

That latter bubble was obviously pricked a little when, in the midst of his brilliant career, he was asked for a second from the second front.

But Mr. Willkie carried on. He will create false and passionately held impressions, social reform, imperialism, colonialism, India, opium, and many other things, for farmers—at any time and at a moment's notice.

Mr. Willkie is a man of the future. He is the fall-down front of a system, the fall-down front of a system, the fall-down front of a system.

Wendell Willkie is Example of the Present Age of Talk

By HAROLD L. WEIR

If the average intelligent man were asked to sort out his impressions and feelings about the question: "What's the chief thing wrong with democracy?" he would answer in one of two ways.

Now that need not be a reflection on the man, Willkie the man. Willkie the man, I believe, is a highly capable and extremely well-intentioned fellow. He is brimming over with good will and equally well-meaning resolutions. He honestly wants to see the world progress.

But his modest operandi makes a nuisance of himself. And it is that he is typical of a great deal that is wrong with our democracy.

Willkie is only employing the language that has been used for generations among the democracies for a generation. That is why, although there is no intrinsic fault in his mind which I know of, the public is not much wiser.

Politically, Willkie is the product of a generation of many good ideas. He is essentially a good man. He is essentially a good man. He is essentially a good man.

But why that should give him the right to display his own private contentment upon every subject under the sun is quite beyond me.

Mr. Willkie recently had a bird's-eye view of the world. He talked briefly with Chiang Kai Shek in Chungking and immediately became an authority on the Asiatic situation. He flew over the Alaska highway and immediately became an expert on northern defence. He conferred with military authorities in Africa and at once was translated into the highest ranking war officer in the world.

That latter bubble was obviously pricked a little when, in the midst of his brilliant career, he was asked for a second from the second front.

But Mr. Willkie carried on. He will create false and passionately held impressions, social reform, imperialism, colonialism, India, opium, and many other things, for farmers—at any time and at a moment's notice.

Grandpop of 65 Shows Up Well in Annual Road Race

BUFFALO, N.Y. Nov. 26 (AP)—For four miles Gus Grenville, 65-year-old grandfather and distance runner, led the field Thursday in the annual Buffalo Y.M.C.A. Thanksgiving Day cross-country race.

Tom Grenville, who had before the five-mile event that it was his last competition, followed, crossing the finish line 11th among 25 entrants. But his lead at one point along the route won a final medal to add to the scores he has collected during a 39-year racing career.

The elderly runner won the Y.M.C.A. race only once, in 1907, first in a half-century, but he hasn't missed the starter's gun in the event since.

Hebert Wilshire, 43, of the Niagara Falls, Ont. Harriers, crossed the finish line first yesterday.

Virginia has 6,634 miles of high way.

Jenkins Nets Hershey's Winner

HERSHEY, Pa. Nov. 25 (AP)—Hershey Bears trounced Cleveland Indians 4-1 here Thursday night for their sixth consecutive victory in the battle for leadership of the Eastern half of the American Hockey League.

In the closing minutes of play the Bears downed 2-3, rushed five forwards in, but the Bears met the strategy with a flash of power that netted the fourth goal Jenkins got the credit, with 15 seconds to play.

Imperial Oil Trophy to Stukus

DUNSMUIR, Ont. Nov. 27 (CP)—A.C. Bill Stukus, brilliant quarterback of R.C.A.F. Hurricanes, who will lead his team into the eastern final against Uplands R.C.A.F. Flyers at Toronto Saturday, has been awarded the Imperial Oil trophy as the most valuable and most sportswomanlike player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Bill Harris Named Again As Director

Canadians, Edmonton Athletes and Nov. 3 "M" Depot will compose the City Junior Hockey League this season, it was announced following last night's meeting of the Edmonton District Hockey Association.

W. G. Bill Harris was again named director of the junior division and it is expected the opening game of the schedule will be on Dec. 12. The 11th street rink will be used for all league fixtures.

Although the application for suspension of the franchise for one year by representatives of the Maple Leaf Club is not a surprise, it is nevertheless to be regretted, for that organization has been one of the bulwarks of junior hockey here for many years.

Longhorns Start Annual Scramble For Bowl Bids

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—Immediate acceptance of the Cotton Bowl bid by the University of Texas football players shortly after clinching the Southwest Conference title Thursday set in motion the annual scramble for teams to fill the New Year's Day program.

The opponent for the Longhorns, whose faculty still must approve the players' wishes, is listed among the things unknown but officials are looking toward the Southwest Conference where Tennessee, Georgia and Alabama have compiled good records. Missouri also is drawing some consideration.

The host team in the Rose Bowl daddy of all the New Year's Day extravaganzas, hasn't been determined but a Washington State triumph Saturday over Washington would push the Cougars into the line.

Georgia Tech, especially if it defeats Georgia Saturday to complete an unbeaten season, is favored as the "east" team.

Boston College, which also has a chance Saturday to complete an unbeaten year, is listed as one of the participants in the Sugar Bowl with its opposition expected to come from Tennessee, unbeaten Tulsa of Georgia.

The spotlight hasn't centered on any pair of eleven for the Miami Orange Bowl except the William & Mary's Southern Conference champions are listed among the possibilities.

Officials revived the Sun Bowl game early this week, gave no hint in which direction they are looking for talent.

"Short Snorter" in City

Citizen Ready to Return It

Loses Membership Bill

Visits City

There is one "Short Snorter" in Edmonton today who will be forced to return a lot of "Short Snorters" to the "Short Snorters" Club. But let's explain.

Persons who make a trans-Alberta trip by air are permitted to join an organization open to those who have made the ocean hop. They are known, for some reason or other, as "Short Snorters".

The membership "card" is a dollar bill on which the member writes his name. Those who make the trip without also write their names on the bill.

PAYS PENALTY

A "Short Snorter" is required to produce his membership bill when required to do so by other members of the organization. If he fails to do so he must pay a fine of $1.00. "Short Snorters" present at the time.

All of which leads to this: On Thursday at about 3 p.m. outside the Rialto theatre on 101 street, Cliff Brown, 3841 111 street, picked up a United States $1 bill belonging to a "Short Snorter".

He also picked up a large number of the names being illegible.

At the top of the list appear the words "Short Snorters".

Public Probe Not Requested On Block Fire

No request for a public inquiry into the Nov. 4 fire at the Empire building has been made to the city commissioners, Mayor John W. Fry stated Friday.

However, this matter will come before city council at its next regular meeting as Ald. Sidney Parsons has asked that a full report on the fire be tabled at that meeting.

John Colville, junior of the building, stated Thursday that he would demand a public enquiry by some unbiased group, to enable him to refute certain submissions made by Fire Marshal Jack Hill. It is possible that Mr. Colville will appear before council when the report on the fire is being considered.

"MADE GOAT"

In his demand for a probe of the fire, Mr. Colville suggested that he was "being made the goat" for a poor fire-fighting job of this alibi. It is possible that the whole matter will be submitted to a special committee of the city council for inquiry and report.

The Inquiring Reporter

Will Hiller undertake new official.

THE ANSWERS

HARRY GLASSMAN, salesman: It would not surprise me to see Hiller launch an offensive through Turkey to make a diversion both on the battle front and also on the German home front. In taking a terrific beating in Russia and North Africa, and must do something drastic to stop the dropping of bombs on the Mediterranean to the Allied powers.

ALD. F. J. MITCHELL: There are two lines of attack left open to Hiller, although both would prove dangerous gambles. He might try to seek oil in Iraq, or he might launch into Spain to get at Gibraltar with the object of closing the entrance of the Mediterranean to the Allied powers.

SAM NEELANDS, salesman: Hiller appears to be preparing for a tough and elastic campaign. This is an out-of-line with his past record and attack tactics. I am of the opinion he is planning some form of diversion to attract the public's attention. He is planning to make a big splash in the popular mind. Dictators must be winners. Hiller is a man who never gives up. He is a man who never gives up.

British Guest Children Only One Applies to Return Home

Want to Serve Canada

I Saw Today

Proof that enlistment in Canadian armed forces hold a strong appeal to British guest children resident in Alberta is contained in the fact that of the 111 children placed in the province only one has so far expressed a desire to return to Great Britain to enlist in the armed services overseas.

He is Peter Cave, who has been making his home at Wetaskiwin with J. K. Fraser.

According to information obtained Friday from C. H. Hill of the provincial Children's Aid Society, who is director of British guest children in Alberta, Peter had written to his mother in the United Kingdom for Christmas and to join the R.A.F.

ONE WISH

Mr. Hill said that Peter would probably be granted one wish—enlistment in the R.A.F.—but it will be impossible for him to arrive overseas in time for Christmas. His application to return home has been forwarded to Ottawa for approval, and it is expected the necessary permission will be received in Edmonton shortly.

Peter's application to return home is the first of its kind from the 111 guest children now living in the province. Mr. Hill said that of the 111 children, 100 have expressed a desire to remain in Canada. "They are intensely patriotic," the placement official said.

A-R-O-U-N-D THE TOWN

Roy Lee, M.L.A., Taber, and W. E. Cain, M.L.A., Wainwright, have been visitors at the Legislative buildings this week on government business.

David Buck, 76, resident in the west outskirts of Wetaskiwin, was found dead in his bath Thursday morning. His death was reported by his wife, Mrs. M. Buck, who was informed Friday. He was a bachelor and lived alone in a small house at 4200 street, Wetaskiwin, and district coroner is investigating.

Miss Joy Roycraft, assistant to C. H. Hill of the provincial Children's Aid Society, was informed Friday that a father of one of the 111 guest children in Alberta, Mr. Hill, announced Friday that his son, a Canadian named Emily Beamish, who was granted leave of absence a few weeks ago to join the C.A.F. (W.D.).

Anyone is entitled to cut and plant Christmas trees under the same conditions as in former years. The city has been ordered several weeks ago.

Mr. S. Settle, president of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, will represent that body at the annual Farmers' Market Association scheduled to be held at the Buffalo Hotel, Dec. 10, at 10 a.m. The president of the Red Deer Board of Trade, Friday night, J. Ivan Mackay, superintendent of the Edmonton City Police, also will attend.

Two More Citizens Are Charged After Smoking on Trams

Two more citizens caught smoking in the main portions of city street cars were summoned to appear in court for violation of the ordinance. The charges were laid by Constable Matthew Blackwood last Friday.

The persons against whom summonses were served by the chief constable were Fred Seifert, 1121 8th street, and Lorne B. Kershaw, Jasper Block.

They were apprehended by Det. E. Foster, who has been assigned the task of checking up on smokers.

Seifert was caught in a red-and-white car and Kershaw in a red-and-green car. They will appear in city police court next week.

School Group Plans To Show Pictures

Several moving pictures, including "The Boy Who Swam with a Crocodile" and "The Boy Who Swam with a Crocodile" will be shown Friday, Nov. 27, at 7:15 p.m. and Monday, Nov. 30, at 8 p.m. at the Westminster theatre. The former showing is for children, while Monday's movie will be for adults.

These programs are being sponsored by the Mountain House and School Association. There will be a small admission charge, and proceeds will be turned over to the association.

The technician movie, "Seeing the World Through a Camera," will be shown at the Alberta Motor Association.

United States Engineers Print Attractive Highway Opening Menu

Although the setting could scarcely be compared with a modern city hotel, U.S. army engineers nevertheless made a fine job of the official dinner held following the opening of the Alaska Highway last Friday.

The official program, appropriately enough, was blue-printed by the Engineers Corps, with the front cover depicting a convoy of loaded trucks winding its way through a mountain valley. The convoy consisted of a variety of military vehicles, including tanks, trucks, and jeeps, and was accompanied by a band of music.

Alberta District News in Brief

Annual Parley Social Credit At Willingdon

Ten resolutions dealing with the war and post-war problems were passed at the annual Willingdon Social Credit Convention held at Willingdon recently.

Several resolutions passed by the joint caucus of all Social Credit provincial and federal members, held recently at Edmonton, were unanimously approved and accepted by the convention. Among these were resolutions dealing with the general post-war policy, the rehabilitation and pensions of soldiers and their dependents, and the general agricultural resolution.

DEBT MORATORIUM

The convention urged the federal government in strong terms that a private debt moratorium be immediately instituted until such time as the federal government possesses in parliament adequate debt legislation in place of providing legislation held imperative by the courts.

Copies of this resolution were sent to Hon. Mr. Lester, federal minister of finance, and Hon. Mr. Lauro, federal minister of justice.

The debt resolution further urged cancellation of all interest on all farm debts for the duration of the war in order to enable the farmers to pay a still greater part of the war effort.

Anthony Hynka, M.P. for Vegreville, praised Premier Albert, stating that Premier Albert was the only leader in Canada today who ranked with Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. "It would have been well to recall that the war is not far off, and they will," he said.

William Tomy, M.L.A. for Willingdon, stated that the war is not far off, and they will, he said.

The convention passed a resolution urging the cancellation of all interest on all farm debts for the duration of the war in order to enable the farmers to pay a still greater part of the war effort.

A further resolution was passed providing the closing of small independent retail stores and wholesale businesses. It was stated that such an act would hurt the small merchants out of business entirely and business would become centralized even more than it is today. If this was done it would kill private enterprise for all time, it was stated.

A resolution was passed requesting a more adequate arrangement of labor to agriculture. It was pointed out that the Order-in-Council P.C. 2252, which provided postponement for farmers.

FERINTOSH—Memorial services for the late P.O. Erickson, killed in action overseas recently, were held at the Highland Park church recently with Rev. Clarence Strom and Rev. Otto Ecklund officiating. The deceased is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Erickson, old timers of the Highland Park district.

JUST FIFTH COLUMNISTS

ALL READY FOR ANOTHER GO AT NIPPONESE

Yanks and Aussies Put Japs to Rout in New Guinea

Rugged Fighters on a Rugged Front

Tip to Tip, It's a Great Big Ship

More than 80 U.S. Army mechanics line up atop of a Consolidated B-24 Liberator and you get an idea how big it is. Combat pilots say it's rugged, easily manoeuvred. It holds the trans-Atlantic full load record of 400 minutes and is in use on all fronts.

Bombs Away!

This remarkable picture was taken from the bomb bay of an American Flying Fortress, just as two bombs were simultaneously released and sent on their mission of destruction toward the German submarine base at Lorient, France. In the city's pattern, between and around the bombs, can be seen the smoke puffs of previous hits during the raid.

Submarine Menace

Aquatic lovelies Martha and Patsy Brown constitute a definite threat to the equanimity of mere men as they go through their water ballet routine in a Los Angeles pool.

Take Your Pick of the Posies

Alexis Smith basks in the sunlight of her Hollywood garden. Much of her time away from the mikes is spent in entertaining the service men and she has regularly donated blood to the Red Cross. She will be seen with Charles Boyer and Joan Fontaine in Warners' "The Constant Nymph" and she is also starred with Fredric March as his wife in "The Adventures of Mark Twain."

The Desert Song Is Tea for Two

Like the colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady, General and Tommy both like their tea, so Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth Army, accepts a cup from a gun crew member.

A Sunday in Dover

When German shells start screaming across the English Channel, British defenders go on the alert—in Dover's ancient castle and the hills leading up to it.

They stop in the village centre to listen to a Salvation Army band.
